WOULD PLACE BOWLERS ON AN EQUAL FOOTING

NEW RULE FOR AMERICAN BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

NEW PINS IN THE EVENING

An Effort to Balance Advantages and Disadvantages—Sixty Sets of Pins Ordered.

With the object of putting all the bowlers in the American Bowling Congress tournament, in February, on an equal footing, the Indianapolis promoters have adopted a new rule to govern the contests.

So, if a man were on the evening schedule and the new pins were put on the alleys in the morning, he would have a double advantage over those that bowled in the morning with the new pins.

The Indianapolis association has decided that the new pins shall go on the alleys at 7 in the evening, when the bowling series of games begins. Thus the bowler that has the advantage of bowling in the evening will have to stand for the disadvantage of "green" pins.

Games May End at Midnight.

The Indianapolis men are trying to arrange the schedules so it will not be necessary to bowl all day and all night. If possible, it will be provided that the last bowlers shall face the alleys at 11 p. m.

YOST LOOKS TO THE EAST.

Will Try to Make Michigan Champions of the Country.

The Michigan football team, the greatest in the West, will lose only four of its regular players this year. They are Sweezy and Herstein, who have played four years at Michigan; McGugin, who has played two years at Drake and two at Michigan; and Cole, who has played three years at Marquette and one at Michigan. As Michigan was well supplied with strong substitute players in the season just closed, the Wolverines' outlook for next season is most encouraging.

With the championship of the West to his credit beyond all doubt, Coach Yost, generally believed to be the most versatile football teacher that the game has known, will turn his attention to the East next year. He will try to arrange Football Caused Fourteen Deaths and Eighty-Five Serious Injuries.

Now that the season is over and the returns are all in it is shown that the game of football has provided more work for the undertaker than ever before. Fourteen deaths and eighty-five serious injuries have been reported this year, against eight deaths and seventy-five injuries last year. The list of injuries only includes those of a serious nature, such as concussion of the brain, fractured limbs and ribs and internal injuries. Broken noses, split lips, knocked out teeth, sprained wrists and ankles, and dislocated shoulders and elbows are every-day occurrences and are not considered of sufficient importance to require mention.

Devotees of the game assert that as the players are now dressed, in sole leather helmets, hard rubber face-guards, heavily padded trousers and sweaters, and rubber braces for knees, elbows, ankles and shoulders, the danger of being injured has been greatly diminished. They say that the increase in the number of fatalities is not in proportion to the increase in the number of players.

JOHN L. A. BANKRUPT.

NEW YORK, November 29.—John L. Sullivan went into bankruptcy in the interest of the drama and Boston. If he had not done it, he could not have gone to Boston next week to fill a theatrical engagement without risking the indignity of arrest for a little matter of $50 for clothes.

The ex-fighter celebrated his release from debt by giving a little dinner last night in his old friend's, Bill Bennett's, place, in Seventh avenue. It was a foodless dinner.

John L. wore to the party the $60 worth of clothes which are all his assets, and which, fortunately, are exempt. The most prominent part of the assets was the pink shirt with two yawning holes in the bosom.

"I put me lamps away," said John, when a friend playfully stuck the end of an umbrella through the hole in the shirt. "How could I be a bankrupt with me jewels on me?"

Before John and his three guests wound up the dinner, the fighter made a little speech on creditors and other things.

"I'm a bankrupt," he began. "Who says I ain't? Ain't thousands of prominent men bankrupt? I ain't got no time to bother with creditors. No prominent man has. Boston is a bum town, if I was born in it, but I ain't going to disappoint the people there."

John's liabilities are about $2,000. Besides one debt of $50 to a Boston clothing firm, he owes several bills in this city and St. Louis for beer and liquor.

SO LADYLIKE.
The Fullback (temporarily out of commission)—Who said football was a brutal game!

CAN WRITE NOVELS, BUT CAN'T PLAY FOOTBALL

INDIANA COLLEGES FARED POORLY THIS YEAR.

LACKED MATERIAL AND CASH

Suggestion Made for a Primary and a Secondary League for the Middle West.

Indiana's supposedly strong football teams have closed the most unsuccessful season that they have ever had. The "big three"—Indiana, Purdue and Notre Dame—were buffeted about by nearly every prominent team they played out of the State.

Indiana lost to Michigan, Notre Dame, Illinois, Chicago and Purdue, and closed the season with a tie game with Ohio, thereby winning her only honor of the season. Purdue was drubbed by Illinois and Chicago, and Notre Dame was downed by Michigan and Knox. The Indiana teams were not beaten more frequently was due to the fact that they played so few of the "big nine" teams.

The reason for the poor showing of Indiana teams is not hard to find. Indiana colleges have neither the material from which to draw nor the financial backing that other of the "big nine" colleges have.

Purdue is really the only institution in the State that has football material that will compare at all favorably with that of Illinois, Chicago, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, and even here the comparison is rather discouraging.

Purdue has from 1,200 to 1,300 men students, Indiana has nearly 600 men students, and Notre Dame has about an equal number that are available for football.

Money is Needed.

What can be expected, then, when these teams play against those that are recruited from student bodies that run up into the thousands? And for every dollar that Indiana teams have to spend in building up their teams, the other big colleges of the West have five dollars.

As money is a most essential element in this day of football, the handicap under which Indiana teams labor is apparent.

By reason of this state of affairs it has been suggested that Michigan, Wisconsin, Chicago, Minnesota and possibly Illinois, form a league among themselves, and let the Indiana colleges, Knox, Ohio, DePauw, Iowa and Nebraska, form a secondary league. By league it is not meant that each team play games with every other team in the class assigned to it, for this would mean too hard a schedule. But they could have a championship in each division, as there is this year with Michigan leading the front rank and Nebraska the second rank.

Smaller Colleges Answer.

The smaller colleges answer this by saying that they learn more football in games with the big teams than they get from their coaches. This argument hardly holds, for the reason that two leagues would not prevent a team from scheduling games with teams outside of its league. The big teams need games with the secondary teams just as much as the secondary teams need games with the big teams.

Fridays may prevent some of the smaller colleges from seeking to resign from the "big nine," but the efforts of some of the teams to hold up their end in this company is little less than ridiculous. Take Iowa, for instance. The Iowans were defeated by Michigan, 107 to 0 and by Illinois, 80 to 0.

As to Indiana, again, the Hoosiers can write novels by the bushel, can turn out winning orators and crack debating teams, but it seems that when it comes to athletics they are at a loss. They are in favor of the big colleges of the West.

Sports in General.
Harry E. Fiesher has been elected captain of the Northwestern football team for next season. He is also captain of the baseball team.

President Roosevelt received the Carlisle Indian football players yesterday. The Indians went to Washington to accept the Georgetown team, and they accomplished their purpose.

Faculty representatives of the big nine colleges, football players and coaches and newspaper men held a banquet at the Chicago Press Club last night. The chief object of the banquet was to get the faculty men and newspaper men in closer touch.

Jimmy Britt is getting decidedly angry since his victory over Frank Erne. He has made a report on the fight to Governor or Young Corbett should he fail to stop either in ten rounds. Britt should remember that McGovern knocked out Erne in shorter time than he did.

Muncie defeated Anderson at polo last night, 5 to 3. The game marked the opening of Anderson's new rink and the occasion was made a big event. A crowd of over 2,000 was present, and Mayor Forkner made an address. The Anderson team showed lack of training. The Muncie players worked together nicely and won with ease.

Captain Strecker, of the Terre Haute high school football team, is trying to plunge the high school teams of the State into a bootless quarrel by challenging the Marion high school team to a game for the State championship. Marion and Terre Haute may think they have the best teams in the State, but a dozen other high schools think the same regarding their teams.

The first step in the reorganization of the Grand Circuit Racing Association was taken yesterday at New York. A committee consisting of Senator J. W. Bailey, J. Malcolm Forbes, H. K. Devereux, C. J. Smith and others, was appointed to visit all the leading trotting tracks of the country and make a report on the condition of the industry.

At a meeting of representatives of the big nine colleges in Chicago, yesterday, the applications of Notre Dame and Nebraska were refused. These colleges conform to the conference rules, it is said, and there was some surprise that they were turned down. The conference decided that their admission would make the organization unwieldy. Chicago, Illinois and Indiana were named as a committee to make a report on the matter of allowing baseball players to play on semi-professional teams during the winter months.

LEADERS IN POLO RACE TO PLAY HERE TO-NIGHT

INDIANAPOLIS WILL MEET THE MUNCIE TEAM AGAIN.

LOCALS ROUNDING INTO FORM

With a Little More Practice the Team will be Able to Hold Its Own with Any in the League.

The Indianapolis polo team will make its second local appearance of the season at Tomlinson Hall to-night. The Muncie team, leaders in the race of the Western Polo Association, will be the opponents of the Indianapolis team. Indianapolis and Muncie played Thursday night, and Indianapolis had a shut-out in eight until the last half of the last period, when the team went to pieces and allowed Muncie to win out in the most unexpected manner.

The Indianapolis polo team has won one game and lost four and stands fifth in the race, ahead of Elwood only. Notwithstanding this position in the race, the team has played a good game and gives indication of rounding into pennant-winning form. Polo at Racine, Muncie, Richmond and Anderson is an old game and the managers of the teams in those cities were able to go about the work of building up teams to better advantage than the local promoters.

Need Team Work.

Individually, the Indianapolis players are probably the equals of any in the league, but they have not played together long enough to acquire that degree of team work needed in the Western Association. In Thursday night's game Elwood and Way could not play their games on account of swollen wrists. Had these two men been in condition the disastrous reversal of form in the last period would not have occurred.

Within a few days the members of the local team will strike their gait and will begin playing together better. Then the team will be able to hold its own with any team.

The attendance at the league games so far this season has been all that could have been desired. The cities have shown an unusual interest, which is, no doubt, due to the fact that they are in a league of some pretensions. Polo now ranks with bowling as one of the leading winter sports and Indianapolis devotees of the game are hoping that this city will support the game. Moran, an Eastern player, will referee to-night's game. The standings of the league is as follows:

Team	Wins	Losses	Points
Muncie	4	0	1,000
Racine	3	1	750
Richmond	2	1	500
Anderson	1	2	250
Indianapolis	1	4	200
Elwood	0	5	100
